CAMPAIGN OPENING.

The Republicans Hold Meetings in a Ten in Columbus—The Speakers Were Sea-tor Sherman, Senator-Elect Foraker and Gen. S. L. Weodford, of New York.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17.-Republicant poured into Columbus Saturday from all parts of Ohio. Special trains brought enthusiastic clubmen from the lake cities, from the interior towns along the Ohio river. It was estimated that there were 8,000 visitors in Columbus at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, and they were still arriving in large numbers on every train. The opening meeting of the republican state and national campaign was called to order at 1:30 by Gov. Bushnell. The first speaker was Senator Sherman. He was followed by ex-Gov. Foraker. Chairman Kurtz, of the state com mittee received a letter from Maj. Mc-Kinley in which he expressed his re grets at not being able to be present at Saturday's meeting. Maj. McKinley said he was busy with his letter of acceptance and that he had determined to make no political speeches outside of Canton. Ex-Gov. Foraker arrived shortly after noon and a cordial greeting was given him. Hundreds of friends who had assembled at the station to meet him. He will remain in Columbus till Sunday noon and then go to New York whence he sails for Europe Wednesday. The meetings were held in a large circus tent, having a seating capacity of ten thousand. Senator Sherman, Gov. Bushnell, Ex-Gov. Foraker and Gen. Stewart L. Woodford rode in the same carriage to the afternoon meeting. Their entrance was hailed with tumultuous cheering and applause. Gen. Bushnell made a short speech of welcome, and then introduced Senator Sherman, who was heartily applauded. Senator Sherman, for the first time in many years, read his speech. opening period, eulogizing McKinley, was made the occasion of a prolonged outbreak of enthusiastic cheers. Senator Sherman was followed by Senstor-elect Foraker.

International Lesson for August 88, 1896— Absalom's Rebellion — 8 Samuel 18:

[Arranged from Peloubet's Notes.]

[Arranged from Peloubet's Notes.]
GOLDEN TEXT.—Honor thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy Ged giveth thee.—Exodus 20:12.
THE SECTION includes Chaps. 13 to 16.
He who would understand the story of Absalom's rebellion, says Lyman Abbott, must read it with Psalms 42 and 43, Psalm 4 and Psalm 3. Let him read them in that order. They tell the whole story of David's battle and his victory. Also Psalms 39, 41, 56 and 63.

41, 55 and 63.

TIME.—Absalom's rebellion occurred B.
C. 1022 and 1023, 11 or 12 years after our last C. 1022 and 1023, 11 or 12 years after our last lesson. The calculation is made thus: Amnon's crime, probably within a year or two after David's sin; Amnon slain two years after his crime (2 Sam. 13:23); Absalom in exile for three years after slaying Amnon (13:33), and two years in Jerusalem before he saw his father (14:28), and four years in plotting his rebellion (see under V. 7).

LESSON NOTES.

I. The Steps Which Led Absalom to Rebellion.—The first step was his own crime. Not long after David's sin became known, perhaps before his bitter repentance had been made public, his eldest son, Amnon, possibly influenced by his father's example, committed a most dastardly crime towards his halfsister, Tamar. David was angry, but took no steps to punish his son and heir. How could he, remembering his own recent experience? Then Absalom, Tamar's own brother, after waiting two years, made himself the avenger of blood, and at a feast he gave to the king's sons slew Amnon. 'Absalom's revenge may have been encouraged by the hope that if Amnon was out of the way he himself might become David's successor. Another step was a certain sense of injustice and antagonism. As an exile for three years in the heathen country of his grandfather, and out of favor for two more in Jerusalem, he would naturally come into a state of antagonism with his father. He felt the injustice of his position, for he had done only what he felt that his father had wrongfully neglected to do in avenging his sister's wrong. More than, probably, too, he was in antagonism to his father's religion, being himself half heathenish and wholly worldly. The life of his father, who, as a whole, was a wise, devoted, unselfish, religious man, one who trusted and obeyed God, was a direct reproof of Absalom in all regards. Another step was his growing envy of the young Solomon. Absalom would regard himself as the rightful heir to his father's throne, being the oldest son living. He saw that the influence of Bathsheba was paramount, and that Solomon was the favorite son.

There were at least two conditions which would seem to make the success of a rebellion possible. First, there was a growing dissatisfaction with the king. The business of the low courts, over which the king himself presided, had become too vast to be attended to by one man. Appeals from inferior judges and cases brought directly before the king could not all receive a fair hearing. Unquestionably, the loose administration of justice, the weakest part of David's government, formed a real grievance. Geike and others think that the numbering of the people and the consequent plague took place during this period. It was a political blunder. The enrollment was for either stricter military service or to raise extra taxes demanded by the growing expenses of the monarchy, even while David had immense treasures laid up for religious

II. The Plot.-Vs. 1-6. After the apparent reconciliation of Absalom to his father, he set up a carriage and horses, and 50 men were runners before him. This was to attract the attention of the people by a display of princely pomp, such as the orientals are very fond of. And he placed himself at an early hour near the gate where the king was accustomed to ait and hear the complaints of the people. As the men of Israel came with their suits, Absalom artfully flattered each by pronouncing a favorable decision on his case. If the man lost his cause, after this flattering opinion delivered by Absalom, of course he would set it down as gross injustice, and be incensed against David accordingly. The Rebellion .- Vs. 7-12. Four years this passed away. The "forty' verse seven is thought to be a transcriber's error for four, a mistake easily made when numbers were designated by letters often very similar. Then Absalom went to Hebron, avowedly to offer a sacrifice. Before the secret emissaries had been sent out, before he went to Hebron, to prepare all the disaffected ones for revolt, Clericus believes Absalom arranged a succession of trumpeters at proper stations from north to south, so that it could be proclaimed by a telegraph of sound, on the same day through all the land: "Absalom reigneth in Hebron." first news the people would have of the rebellion would be that it was already an accomplished success. This impression would aid the success in the highest degree.

Two hundred prominent men of Jerusalem were invited to the merrificial feast, and though these knew nothing of the plot, they would naturally be regarded as accomplices in the conspiracy. Absalom hoped that many of them, finding themselves thus compromised, would decide to join him. The rebellion proved popular, and Ab-salom moved swiftly to Jerusalem. The story of David's flight, with its tou

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

Bad early training and evil influences is a terrible misfortune to the young The influences of a bad home, or bad influences in spite of a good home, are the ruin of many young people.

There are around all many good intuences, and each one chooses which eath he will take, and to which in-luences he will yield. There are many sints in Heaven, very near the throne who came from the most unfavorable the Nile, always pure even in the mudHORSE MEAT DEFENDED.

An Authority Claims Prejudice Prohibite
Its General Use.

Everybody is aware that the horse is the cleanest of all domestic animals. It will not eat anything but good, healthy food, nor drink any but pure water. A horse would rather starve than swill the rotten stuff often given to pigs and cattle. It is nothing but prejudice that prevents us from eating horseflesh.

A similar prejudice retarded the in-troduction of the potato 100 years ago. Today we could not get along without it. Yet the prejudice against potatoes can be explained. The people had been told that this American root cause fever and rendered the ground unfit for all other crops. The exception against horsefiesh is not even founded upon any objection to its properties. It is solely due to the influence of the church. The clergy did everything possible to pre-vent the newly converted Saxons from returning to their heathenish practices and prohibited the use of horseflesh to stop the sacrifices to Odin and Thor. A long time passed before these sacrifices were altogether discontinued. The nations of Europe have suffered enormous loss by this prohibition of horseflesh. Especially from the humani-tarian point of view the results are most deplorable. Millions of people are forced to live on potatoes and similar food wanting in nutritive qualities, while millions of pounds of the very best meat are wasted. Horseflesh is the most nourishing of all meats, and its taste is hardly to be distinguished from that of beef. The flesh of a horse fed on oats has a smell similar to goosefiesh. The fat is preferable to lard. Above all, it should be remembered that no flesh is so healthy as that of the horse. Trichinosis and similar diseases are unknown in horses. Tuberculosis, very common in cattle, is very rare in horses. - Frankfurter Zeitung.

PRIVATE BRADLAUGH.

How He Rebuked an Officer For His

Ungentlemanly Conduct. One of Messrs. Cassell's publications says that the late Charles Bradlaugh, when in the British army, was orderly room clerk, and a newly arrived officer once entered the room where he was sitting at work and addressed to him some discourteous order. Private Bradlaugh took no notice. The order was repeated with an oath. Still no movement. Then it came again, with some foul words added. The young soldier rose, drew himself to his full height, and, walking up to the officer, bade him leave the room or he would throw him out. He went accordingly, but in a few moments the grounding of muskets was heard outside, the door opened, and the colonel walked in, accompanied by the officer. It was clear that the private soldier had committed an act for which he might be court martialed, and as he said once, "I felt myself in a tight place." The officer made his accusation, and Private Bradlaugh was bidden to explain. He asked that the officer should state the exact words in which he had addressed him, and the other, who had, after all, a touch of honor in him, gave the offensive sentence word for word. Then Private Bradlaugh said. addressing the colonel, that the officer's memory must surely be at fault in the whole matter, as he could not have used language so unbecoming to an officer and a gentleman. The colonel turned to the officer with the dry remark: "I think Private Bradlaugh is right. There

A New Antiseptic.

We are willing to admit that the Japanese can give us points on various industries and mechanical arts, but we have scarcely been prepared for the announcement that they are ahead of us in certain points in surgery. Antiseptic dressings are among the absolutely necessary surgical appliances. There is more or less difficulty in preparing them, and they are for the most part expensive, and many of them are not at all satisfactory. During the war Jap-anese surgeons used the ashes of ricestraw as a dressing for wounds, and met with most remarkable success. The wound was cleaned, the ashes applied freely, then sublimate gauze or linen was used as a wrapping. These ashes are said to be a perfect antiseptic, and owe these qualities to the presence of potassium carbonate. English and American surgeons are trying this dressing, and if it is as successful in their hands as in the Japanese, it certainly is a wonderful stride in antiseptic surgery, and is unquestionably the cheaper dressing that has ever been prepared. -New York Ledger.

"Well? That what?" "That you hadn't reached a point where you begin at a cloud and build

"No-a Not yet," returned the native thoughtfully. "But we're getting there."—Chicago Post. Sour Grapes.

The fox had jumped and jumped and jumped. He sat down with his tongue hanging out and eyed the unattainable grapes with a well assumed air of indifference.

"Dear me!" he remarked airily.
